This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. NOTICE OF THE LIBRARY.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY OF WESTERN AUSTRALIA owes its existence to the desire, universal throughout the British Empire, to erect lasting memorials in celebration of the Jubilee of the reign of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria in 1887.

A commission appointed by His Excellency the Governor of the Colony to consider a suitable method of worthily commemorating so important an event, decided after consideration to recommend the Government to establish an institute, to be called the "Victoria Jubilee Institute," comprising a Public Library, Museum and Art Gallery. As, however, the state of the colonial funds at that time would not permit the full scheme to be carried out, it was agreed that one portion only, a public library, to bear the title "Victoria Public Library," should be proceeded with.

The recommendations of the committee were, in the main, adopted, and on the 21st June, 1887, the foundation-stone of the institute was laid by His Excellency the Governor, in the presence of representatives of all the public bodies of the Colony.

A committee of management (consisting of Sir Malcolm Fraser, K.C.M.G. (chairman); Septimus Burt, Q.C.; J. W. Hackett, M.A.; M. F. A. Canning; and F. J Hickling) was appointed in May, 1888, which decided, pending the completion of the permanent structure, to lease premises suitable for library purposes. This was done and the institution was opened to the public on January 26th, 1889.

At that time the Library contained 1796 volumes, and increased but slowly till 1894, when there were 5571 books on the shelves. The Western Australian gold discoveries then began to engage the attention of the outside world, and attracted a large increase of population, which brought in its train expanding trade and greatly increased material prosperity to the whole Colony. The library, in common with every other phase of national work, soon felt the benefit of the improved conditions. Money being more plentiful, increase became more rapid, so much so that at the present time (1905) the library contains over 66,000 volumes, and has an average yearly attendance of about 200,000 readers.

The original site having been found to be unsuitable, the Government reserved a large block of land at the corner of Beaufort and James Streets as a permanent site for a building to include the Library, Museum, and National Gallery, and in 1896 a commencement was made with the first portion of such a structure, which should be temporarily the home of the Library, but ultimately be used for Museum purposes.

The foundation-stone previously laid in St. George's Terrace was removed to its new position, a further stone commemorative of the Diamond Jubilee of Her late Majesty being placed with it, and the two were unveiled by His Excellency the Governor, Sir Gerard Smith, on the 22nd June, 1897, the function forming part of the celebration in Western Australia of the completion of the sixtieth year of Her late Majesty's reign. In August, 1897, the Library was moved from the old premises of the Western Australian Bank in St. George's Terrace into the basement, and twelve months later to the ground floor of that building.

In 1902 the rapid growth of the Library caused a demand for more extensive accommodation, and in 1903 the second portion of the comprehensive scheme was erected by the Government. This forms the first part of the permanent library, and contains accommodation for 100,000 volumes, as well as ample and well ventilated space for readers.

By resolution of the committee, confirmed by the Governor-in-Council, the word "Victoria" was, in April, 1904, deleted from the name of the institution, which then became "The Public Library of Western Australia."

The present committee of the institution consists of:—Hon. J. W. Hackett, M.A., LL.D., M.L.C. (chairman); Hon. Sir George Shenton, M.L.C.; Charles Harper, Esq.,; His Honour Mr. Justice McMillan; M. F. A. Canning, Esq.; Dr. H. F. Harvey; Dr. H. T. Kelsall; and the Hon. H. Briggs, M.L.C.

PREFACE TO THE CATALOGUE.

THIS, the first published catalogue of the Public Library of Western Australia, contains entries of over 65,000 volumes. They have been catalogued upon what is known as the "dictionary" plan, that is to say, authors, subjects, and titles are arranged in one comprehensive alphabet like the words in a dictionary.

The main or author entries have been made fairly full, so that the books may be easily identified, but owing to financial considerations subject and title entries have been curtailed as much as possible, consistent with sense and meaning.

All books having a definite subject have been catalogued under both author and subject, and shelf numbers attached to both entries; novels and dramas have been entered under author and title, but the shelf number omitted from the title entry.

Anonymous and pseudonymous works have been entered under the real name of the author, where procurable, with a reference from the title of the book or the pseudonym.

So far as possible with the means at our command, bibliographical exactness has been aimed at. Failure to achieve it will I hope be ascribed to lack of the necessary authorities, and not to unwillingness to take the trouble to consult them.

In the preparation of the Catalogue I have been ably assisted by the principal officers of the staff, Messrs. H. B. Collett and Chas. Battye. For typographical errors, however, these officers are not responsible, as I have personally corrected every line of the proof.

In conclusion I desire to acknowledge my indebtedness to "Cutter's Rules for a dictionary catalogue," which have been more or less closely followed, and also to all other bibliographical authorities commonly made use of by public librarians.

JAS. S. BATTYE,
CHIEF LIBRARIAN.

English.–The Byble, whych is all the Holy Scripture in whych are contayned the Olde and Newe Testament, truely and purely translated into Englishe by Thomas Matthew, 1537. [Also, Prologues to the V. bokes of Moyses and before the Prophete Jonas, and also before the Epistell to the Romaynes, wythe certayne other, by W. Tyndale. And after every chapter are there added many playne annotations, etc. Black letter.]
4 pts. in 1 v., fo. Lond., T. Raynalde and W. Hyll, Oct. 31st, 1549. A8, l20

Note.–This is an edition of the Bible of 1537 generally known as Matthew's Bible, with the additions set forth above. The name Thomas Matthew is a pseudonym; in reality the books from Genesis to Chronicles and the New Testament were tr. by Tyndale, and the remainder by Miles Coverdale. The work, or rather that part of it which is essentially Tyndale's translation, was edited by John Rogers, and the name Thomas Matthewe is usually treated as a pseudonym for Rogers; it seems more correct, however, to regard it as standing for Tyndale's name, which it was dangerous to mention at that time.

Title page and preliminary matter 20 leaves, pt. 1: Gen.–Job, pt. 2: Ps.–Mal. and Apocrypha, pt. 3: Matt.–Acts, pt. 4: Rom.–Rev. 53 or 54 ll. to the full column. Title pages only to the Testaments. The woodcut border of the title is from the same blocks as that of Petyt and Redman for Berthelet, folio 1540, and Coverdale's of 1535 and 1537, all differing, however, in the setting of the texts in the different cartouches.

This copy is perfect and in excellent condition.

On the method of Zadig.
On the border territory between the animal and vegetable kingdoms.
Errors respecting the structure of the heart attributed to Aristotle.

Huxley, Thomas Henry. Science and culture and other essays (continued)—

On the hypothesis that animals are automata.
On sensation and the unity of structure of the sensiferous organs.
Evolution in biology.
Coming of age of "The origin of species."
Connection of the biological sciences with medicine.

Scientific memoirs: ed. by M. Foster and E. R. Lankester. [With portraits and plates.] 4 v., 8vo. Lond., 1898-1902. S106, f1-4

CONTENTS.

v. 1. On a hitherto undescribed structure in the human hair sheath.
Examination of the corpuscles of the blood of amphioxus lanceolatus.
Description of the animal of trigonia from actual dissection.
On the anatomy and the affinities of the family of the medusae.
Notes on medusae and polypes.
Observations sur la circulation du sang chez les mollusques des genres firole et Atlante.
Observations upon the anatomy and physiology of salpa and pyrosoma.
Remarks upon the appendicularia and doliolum, two genera of the tunicata.
Zoological notes and observations made on board H.M.S. "Rattlesnake" during the years 1846-50.
Observations on the genus sagitta.
An account of the researches into the anatomy of the hydrostatic acalephae.
Description of a new form of sponge-like animal.
Report upon the researches of Prof. Müller into the anatomy and development of the echinoderms.
Ueber die Sexualorgane der Diphydae and Physophoridae.
Lacinularia socialis: a contribution to the anatomy and and physiology of the rotifera.
Upon animal individuality.
On the morphology of the cephalous mollusca.
Researches into the structure of the ascidians.
On the anatomy and development of echinococcus veterinorum.
On the identity of structure of plants and animals.
Observations on the existence of cellulose in the tunic of ascidians.
On the development of the teeth, and on the nature and import of Nasmyth's "persistent capsule."
The cell-theory (review).
On the vascular system of the lower ennulosa.
On the common plan of animal forms.
On the structure and relation of the corpuscula tactus (tactile corpuscules or axile corpuscules) and of the pacinian bodies.
On the ultimate structure and relations of the malpighian bodies of the spleen and of the tonsillar follicles.
On certain zoological arguments commonly adduced in favour of the hypothesis of the progressive development of animal life in time.
On natural history as knowledge, discipline and power.
On the present state of knowledge as to the structure and functions of nerve.
On the phenomena of gemmation.
Contributions to the anatomy of the brachiopoda.
On the hermaphrodite and fissiparous species of tubicolar annelidae (protula dysteri).
On the structure of noctiluca miliaris.
On the enamel and dentine of the teeth.
Memoir on physalia.
On the anatomy of diphyes and on the unity of composition of the diphyidae and physophoridae, etc.
Tegumentary organs.
On the method of palaeontology.
Observations on the structure and affinities of himantopterus.
Further observations on the structure of appendicularia flabellum (chamisso).
Note on the reproductive organs of the cheilostome polyzoa.
Description of a new crustacean (pygocephalus Cooperi, Huxley), from the coal-measures.
On dysteria, a new genus of infusoria.
Review of Dr. Hannover's memoir: "Ueber die Entwickelung und den Bau des Säugethierzahns."

v. 1. Letter to Mr. Tyndall on the structure of glacier ice.
On cephalaspis and pteraspis.
On a new species of plesiosaurus (P. Etheridgii) from Street, near Glastonbury.
On the theory of the vertebrate skull.

2. On the structure and motion of glaciers.
On the agamic reproduction and morphology of aphis.
On some points in the anatomy of nautilus from pilius.
On the persistent types of animal life.
On the stagonolepis Robertsoni (Agassiz) of the Elgin sandstones; and on the recently discovered footmarks in the sandstones of Cumningstone.
On some amphibian and reptilian remains from South Africa and Australia.
On a new species of dicynodon (D. Murrayi) from near Colesberg, South Africa; and on the structure of the skull in the dicynodonts.
On rhamphorhynchus Bucklandi, a pterosaurian from the Stonesfield slate.
On a fossil bird and a fossil cetacean from New Zealand.
On the dermal armour of crocodilus Hastingsiae.
On the anatomy and affinities of the genus pterygotus.
Salter, J. W. Description of the species of pterygotus.
On dasyceps Bucklandi (labyrinthodon Bucklandi, Lloyd).
On a fragment of a lower jaw of a large labyrinthodont from Cubbington.
Observation on the development of some parts of the skeleton of fishes.
On the dermal armour of jacare and caiman with notes on the specific and generic characters of recent crocodilia.
On the anatomy and development of pyrosoma.
On species and races and their origin.
On the structure of the mouth and pharynx of the scorpion.
On the nature of the earliest stages of the development of animals.
On a new species of macrauchenia (M. Boliviensis).
On the pteraspis dunensis (archaeoteuthis dunensis, Roemer).
Preliminary essay upon the systematic arrangement of the fishes of the Devonian epoch.
Glyptolaemus Kinnardi.
Phaneropleuron Andersoni.
On the zoological relations of man with the lower animals.
On the brain of ateles paniscus.
On fossil remains of man.
Anniversary address to the geological society, 1862.
On new labyrinthodonts from the Edinburgh coal-field.
On a stalk-eyed crustacean from the carboniferous strata near Paisley.
On the premola teeth of diprotodon, and on a new species of that genus.
Description of a new specimen of glyptodon recently acquired by the Royal college of surgeons of England.
Letter on the human remains found in the shell-mounds.
Description of anthracosaurus Russelli, a new labyrinthodont from the Lanarkshire coal-field.
Further remarks upon the human remains from the Neanderthal.
On the angwántibo (arctocebus Calabarensis, Gray) of old Calabar.

3. On the cetacean fossils termed "ziphus" by Cuvier, with a notice of a new species (belemnoziphus compressus) from the Red crag.
On the structure of the belemnitidae; with a description of a more complete specimen of "belemnites" than any hitherto known and an account of a new genus of belemnitidae "xiphotenthis."
On the osteology of the genus glyptodon.
On the structure of the stomach in desmodus rufus.
On a collection of vertebrate fossils from the Panchet rocks, Ranigunj, Bengal.
On the methods and results of ethnology.
Explanatory preface to the catalogue of the palaeontological collection in the Museum of practical geology.
On a collection of fossil vertebrata, from the Jarrow colliery, county of Kilkenny, Ireland
On some remains of large dinosaurian reptiles from the Stormberg mountains, South Africa.
On a new specimen of telerpeton Elginense.
On two widely contrasted forms of the human cranium.
On acanthopholis horridus, a new reptile from the chalk-marl.

v. 3. On the stratigraphical position of acanthopholis horridus (Huxley).
On the classification of birds; and on the taxonomic value of the modifications of certain of the cranial bones observable in that class.
On "saurosternon Bainii" and "pristerodon" McKay, two new fossil lacertilian reptiles from South Africa.
On the animals which are most nearly intermediate between birds and reptiles.
On the form of cranium among the Patagonians and Fuegians; with some remarks upon American crania in general.
On some organisms living at great depths in the North Atlantic ocean.
Remarks upon archaeopteryx lithographica.
On the classification and distribution of the alectoromorphae and heteromorphae.
On hyperodapedon.
On a new labyrinthodont from Bradford.
On the upper jaw of megalosaurus.
Anniversary address of the president, 1869.
On the ethnology and archaeology of India.
On the ethnology and archaeology of North America.
On the representatives of the malleus and incus of the "mammalia" in the other "vertebrata."
On the hypsilophodon Foxii, a new dinosaurian from the Wealden of the isle of Wight.
Further evidence of the affinity between dinosaurian reptiles and birds.
On the classification of dinosauria, with observations on the dinosauria of the Trias.
Anniversary address of the president, 1870.
On the ethnology of Britain.
On geographical distribution of the chief modifications of mankind.
Address to the British association at Liverpool.
On the milk dentition of palaeotherium magnum.
Triassic dinosauria.
On the relations of penecillium, torula, and bacterium.
Yeast.

4. On the structure of the skull and of the heart of the menobranchus lateralis.
Note on the development of the columella auris in the amphibia.
Preliminary note upon the brain and skull of amphioxus lanceolatus.
On the bearing of the distribution of the portio dura upon the morphology of the skull.
On the classification of the animal kingdom.
On the recent work of the "Challenger" expedition and its bearing on geological problems.
On stagonolepis Robertsoni, and on the evolution of the crocodilia.
On ceratodus Fosteri, with observations on the classification of fishes.
On the position of the anterior nasal apertures in lepidosiren.
On the nature of the craniofacial apparatus of petromyzon
On the border territory between the animal and the vegetable kingdoms.
On the evidence as to the origin of existing vertebrate animals.
The crocodilian remains found in the Elgin sandstones, with remarks on the ichnites of Cummingstone.
Gordon, Rev. G. Note upon the geological structure of the Elgin district.
On the study of biology.
Address to the anthropological department of the British association, Dublin, 1878.
On the classification and distribution of the crayfishes.
The president's address, 1878.
William Harvey.
On the characters of the pelvis in the mammalia, and the conclusions respecting the origin of mammals which may be based on them.
On sensation and the unity of structure of sensiferous organs.
The president's address, 1879.
On certain errors respecting the structure of the heart attributed to Aristotle.
On the epipubis in the dog and fox.
The coming of age of The origin of species.
On the cranial and dental characters of the canidae.
On the application of the laws of evolution to the arrangement of the vertebrata, and more particularly of the mammalia.

v. 4. The herring.
The connection of the biological sciences with medicine.
The rise and progress of palaeontology.
A contribution to the pathology of the epidemic known as the "salmon disease."
On the respiratory organs of apteryx.
On saprolegnia in relation to the salmon disease.
On the oviducts of osmerus; with remarks on the relations of the teleostean with the ganoid fishes.
Oysters and the oyster question.
Preliminary note on the fossil remains of a chelonian reptile, ceratochelys sthenurus, from Lord Howe's island, Australia.
The gentians; notes and queries.
Further observations upon hyperodapedon Gordoni.
Owen's position in the history of anatomical science.
